

Bienvenue en France

By Ashley Simmons

“Everywhere you look, all you see is beautiful towers and open land”. France is a mixture of city and country. To many people it is amazing.

France is 643,427 square miles; it is slightly less the size of Texas. In France there are 640,053 square kilometers of land and 3,374 square kilometers of water. The Loire River, the longest river in France, is also the most beautiful.

In the North of France they have mild summers, and cool winters. In the South they have very hot summers and freezing winters. Lemons and oranges are grown the South.

In France there are many plants and animals, but most of the plants are crops. There is arable land, permanent crops and other crops. There is mostly wildlife in France there is an animal known as the red squirrel. It is just like a gray squirrel but has reddish orangey fur. They also have dolphins, praying mantis which are endangered and if you kill one you get a 100 dollar fine.

France has 60,424,213 people live there. Several religions are represented. In France there are 83%-88% of Roman Catholic, Protestant 2%, Jewish 1%, and Muslim 5%-10%.

France is mostly known for cars, perfume, wine, and cheese. 350 kinds of cheeses are made in France. Most tourists visit the Eiffel tower and the Notre Dame Cathedral. It's the most beautiful place to visit!
